Tata Steel Mining launches Sparrow Conservation initiative "Love Sparrow" in Sukinda

To spread message on enhancing the population of house sparrows whose number are said to be fluctuating in recent times, Tata Steel Mining Limited (TSML) has started a conservation drive 'Love Sparrow' at its Sukinda Chromite Mine located in Jajpur district, Odisha. Artificial nest boxes, prepared based on scientific design and field data, were distributed to 40 volunteers who came forward to contribute for sparrow conservation. The idea behind the initiative is to help the birds to build more nests in the boxes while drawing public attention towards conservation of the species. An ambassador to the common bird species, the common house sparrow is one of the most ubiquitous birds around and a familiar winged companion of human beings. However, its numbers have seen a fluctuating trend in the recent past. The event created a hope for the conservation of the house sparrow and its habitat.
